Expectations for our students

Our teachers provide high quality education which results in students who are:

Instilled with a culture of respect, responsibility, kindness honesty and with a citizenship in all that they do

Motivated, positive, successful, resilient, confident learners who have high expectations of themselves to do the best they can do and whose values and sense of personal identity are recognised and celebrated

Open to new ideas, able to realise their dreams, talents and personal visions and are fully involved in whole-school life.

Equipped with the "foundation skills" of literacy and numeracy and also with a range of key competencies and future-oriented attributes including information technology

Teachers and Parents working in partnership can achieve these expectations for students when ...

Parents:

- Be sure children get 8-10 hours of sleep and are on time to school
- Read to or listen to their child read daily
- Provide a quiet area to study and assistance when necessary
- Provide necessary resources and materials
- Offer praise and encouragement

Provide adequate nutrition to enable students to learn at their full potential e.g. breakfast

Monitor and limit TV watching and video games as recommended by Michael Gregg-Carr and other child development researchers
Inform and maintain communication with the school
Ensure that students attend school every day

Parents

- Read and return notes from the school personnel
- Monitor homework for completeness
- Inform the school of changes in emergency contact information
- Routinely contact your child's teacher
- Attend interviews, workshops and assemblies
- Volunteer when possible in the classroom

Teachers

- Monitor student progress
- Inform and maintain communication with parents
- Provide a safe and caring environment for students to learn
- Create intervention plans for social and academic needs
- Provide meaningful homework
- Provide necessary resources and materials
- Offer praise and encouragement
- Challenge students to achieve
- Monitor student attendance
- Post rules where they can be easily seen and review them frequently
